

Week 10 Recap — FoulknFootball (2025)

Generated 2026-04-27 00:37 UTC.

Stakes this week

- BearDown on a 5-game losing streak — Dakota's squad needs a win to stop the bleeding.

Intro

There was a different feel around Week 10 in FoulknFootball. The calendar has reached the point where every waiver claim, every start/sit call, and any final trade carries more weight, because once this week closed the rosters stopped being theoretical and became the ones each team has to trust the rest of the way.

That made the highest-scoring game of the week land with a little more force. Rob's Unstoppable Farce put up 199.52 and still needed nearly all of it to get by Dave's He hate me at 193.38, the narrowest margin on the board and the kind of high-stakes battle that says a lot about the middle of the standings. At the top, Brian stayed in first and pushed his 150-plus streak to 10 straight weeks. Just beneath that, the table tightened again. Five teams now sit at either 6-4 or 5-5, while Dakota's BearDown carries the league's clearest pressure point with a five-game slide.

League Themes

The week began, as it often does, with Brian setting the standard even in a crowded field. First in and First Out? improved to 8-2 and did it behind the biggest individual performance on the board, Jonathan Taylor's 46.6-point afternoon, a total that helped carry Brian past Eric while extending that now-familiar run of 10 straight games above 150. Jake matched that same 10-week standard despite the loss to Michael, which keeps Seasonal Depression in strong position even after slipping a spot in the power rankings. The consistency remains real, although the sharper point now is that the teams chasing them are scoring enough to make every week matter.

The biggest mover belonged to Rob. Unstoppable Farce climbed two spots in the power rankings to No. 5, and the rise was earned rather than granted after the league-high 199.52 in a win over Dave. De'Von Achane's 34.5 was the cleanest burst in that lineup, and Tez Johnson turned into a useful waiver hit with 16.2 right away. Rob also made the week's only trade, sending Derrick Henry to Brian for Kareem Hunt and a future pick; Henry gave First in and First Out? 8.4 in his first return, so the larger verdict will wait, but the timing told you enough. This was the final turn before the door closed.

Michael supplied one of the week's stronger all-around answers in beating Jake. Jahmyr Gibbs went for 35.2, the second-best total in FoulknFootball this week, and that helped Disappointment steady itself in a very crowded 5-5 tier alongside Dave, Eric, and Devin. Devin stayed in that pack with a third straight win, and Amon Another level kept getting useful quarterback production from Jaxson Dart, who posted 26.28. That streak fits the standings. So does the pressure on the teams just outside the top four, because there is very little space now between a playoff push and a different kind of December.

On waivers, the best immediate splash belonged to Dakota. Jacoby Brissett gave BearDown 19.42 points, the top scoring return among this week's adds, though the rest of the lineup never followed him and the losing streak reached five. Eric also got a playable number from Marcus Mariota at 18.72 in defeat, while some of the other adds were quieter and did not move the result. That is usually the shape of this part of the season. A pickup can help, but it rarely rescues a whole afternoon by itself.

The stat lines were full of hard swings. Jonathan Taylor more than doubled a 23.0 projection with 46.6, Achane blew past 15.6 with 34.5, TreVeyon Henderson turned 4.6 into 27.0 for Dave, and Gibbs cleared a 14.5 expectation with 35.2. On the other side, Bo Nix fell to 5.8 against a 23.9 projection, Sam Darnold posted 4.9 against 20.9, Jordan Love managed 7.8 against 16.4, and Christian McCaffrey's 9.6 against 21.3 was one of the quieter misses on the week. One detail summed up the volatility well: Rob produced the league's best team score while surviving a crater from Nix, which is usually how 199 happens.

Game by Game

Unstoppable Farce (199.52) vs He hate me (193.38)

Rob gets just enough from the depth, and Unstoppable Farce slips past Dave.

Week 10 in FoulknFootball gave us the kind of high-stakes battle the standings can create in November, and Rob's Unstoppable Farce answered with 199.52 in a 199.52-193.38 win over Dave's He hate me. The margin was only 6.14, and the shape of it was unusual. Rob survived quiet quarterback numbers from Bo Nix of Denver and Jalen Hurts of Philadelphia, then won because the rest of the lineup kept finding useful, steady scoring.

The hero was De'Von Achane. Miami's back carried the center of Rob's day with 34.5 points against Buffalo, turning 22 carries into 174 yards and two touchdowns while adding six catches for 51 yards. Kimani Vidal added 16.8 for the Chargers against Pittsburgh, Ladd McConkey brought 16.7 in the same game, Woody Marks scored 14.1 for Houston against Jacksonville, and the Seattle defense supplied 23.0. We picked Dave coming in, so this one is ours to own directly: the call rode He hate me's recent surge, but what we missed was how much usable scoring Unstoppable Farce would stack around Achane even with the quarterbacks well below projection.

On the other side, Dave produced more than enough to win most weeks. TreVeyon Henderson's 27.0 for New England against Tampa Bay was the headline number, and Kyren Williams added 20.4 for the Rams against San Francisco. Josh Allen gave He hate me 19.34 for Buffalo, Drake London scored 18.4 for Atlanta, Emeka Egbuka added 17.5 for Tampa Bay, and Jaxon Smith-Njigba finished with 15.3 for Seattle. And yet, one sharp detail decided the game: Dave got a -3.0 from the 49ers defense, and in a matchup this tight that was not a small footnote.

There were misses on both sides, which is often what makes a close game read honestly. Rob absorbed 5.8 from Nix and 1.3 from Oronde Gadsden, but still had enough cover from Aaron Jones, Jauan Jennings, Darius Slayton, and Houston's 16.0 points on defense. Dave had stronger top-end quarterback play, but Brock Bowers finished with 2.7 for Las Vegas, Keenan Allen managed 1.9, and James Cook's 5.7 for Buffalo left a little too much for the rest of the card to recover.

The consequence is a clear one for Rob. Unstoppable Farce had come in on a three-game losing streak after last week's loss, and this result stops it with the highest score Rob has posted all season.

First in and First Out? (193.24) vs Sanders Boutte on Sunday (152.90)

Brian gets the better of Eric, and Jonathan Taylor carries First in and First Out?

Week 10 in FoulknFootball brought a high-stakes battle near the top of the regular-season table, and Brian's First in and First Out? answered with the bigger Sunday, beating Eric's Sanders Boutte on Sunday 193.24 to 152.90. The hero was Jonathan Taylor. Indianapolis' back turned 32 carries into 244 rushing yards, added 42 receiving yards, scored three times against Atlanta, and gave Brian 46.6 points in the kind of performance that settles a matchup even when a few other spots stay quiet.

Our Week 9 forecast picked Brian in this game, and the pick held up, but the shape of it did not. The projection called for something tight at 151.7 to 149.8; instead, First in and First Out? cleared 190 because Taylor went far beyond the nine-straight-above-150 storyline we leaned on, and because Brian kept finding support around him. Nico Collins gave Houston 15.6 against Jacksonville on 136 receiving yards, Rome Odunze added 14.6 for Chicago against the Giants, Jaylen Waddle scored 14.4, and Travis Etienne chipped in 13.7.

On the other side, Eric had enough useful work to win plenty of weeks. Trey McBride was excellent for Arizona against Seattle, catching nine passes for 127 yards and a touchdown on the way to 18.7 points, while Marcus Mariota gave Washington 18.72 against Detroit and Breece Hall added 18.5 for the Jets against Cleveland. Jason Myers' 14.0 and Zach Charbonnet's 14.3 kept Sanders Boutte on Sunday in range for a while. And yet, Eric could not absorb too many light returns at once. Christian McCaffrey finished with 9.6 for San Francisco against the Rams, Courtland Sutton had 2.4, Rashid Shaheed scored 2.3, Olamide Zaccheaus managed 0.5, and Tory Horton gave him 0.0.

Brian was hardly perfect, which is part of what makes Taylor's afternoon stand out. Justin Herbert finished at 14.7 for the Chargers against Pittsburgh, Jordan Love had 7.84 for Green Bay against Philadelphia, and the tight end pair of Dalton Kincaid and T.J. Hockenson combined for 4.5. But First in and First Out? had enough steady numbers around the edges, and one sharp detail tells the story: Brian survived 0.5 from Romeo Doubs and still won by 40.34.

The result matters in a clear way. First in and First Out? extends its streak to 10 straight weeks above 150, while Eric's run of six consecutive 150-point games comes to an end.

Disappointment (180.32) vs Seasonal Depression (154.32)

Michael gets the better of Jake as Disappointment turns back Seasonal Depression.

Week 10 in FoulknFootball brought a high-stakes battle between two teams that had been living above 150, and this time it was Michael's Disappointment with the stronger full-card answer. Michael beat Jake, 180.32 to 154.32, flipping the expectation from last week's forecast and doing it with enough room to survive several quiet spots at wide receiver. The hero was Jahmyr Gibbs, and Detroit's running back gave Disappointment 35.2 points against Washington on 142 rushing yards, three catches for 30 more, and three total touchdowns.

The shape of the game is interesting because Michael did not need perfection. Baker Mayfield added 22.92 for Tampa Bay against New England, Drake Maye gave him 18.1 on the other side of that game, George Kittle scored 14.4 for San Francisco against the Rams, and Alec Pierce matched that 14.4 for Indianapolis against Atlanta. And yet, Disappointment also carried 0.0 from DJ Moore, 1.3 from A.J. Brown, 1.4 from Calvin Austin, and 1.0 from Bhayshul Tuten. One sharp detail says plenty: Michael won by 26 even with four starters at 1.4 points or fewer.

On the other side, Jake still posted a respectable number, but Seasonal Depression never found enough lift at quarterback and in the middle flex spots. Jameson Williams was the bright return, scoring 17.9 for Detroit against Washington with 119 yards and a touchdown, while Josh Jacobs added 14.7 for Green Bay against Philadelphia, Puka Nacua brought 12.4 for the Rams against San Francisco, and Denver's defense chipped in 15.0. Meanwhile, Sam Darnold's 4.92 for Seattle against Arizona was the heaviest miss in the lineup, and Garrett Wilson's 0.0, AJ Barner's 0.3, Michael Pittman's 1.9, and Jordan Addison's 3.5 left Jake asking too much from the rest of the card.

There was bench help available for Jake, though not enough to change the result entirely. J.J. McCarthy's 14.72 and Khalil Shakir's 5.8 were left unused, while Michael's own bench was relatively quiet outside the Las Vegas defense at 10.0 and Tua Tagovailoa at 10.82. So this was won in the starters, where Disappointment got the biggest number on the board and enough steady support behind it.

The consequence is a notable one in the weekly ledger. Jake's streak of nine straight games above 150 extends to 10 even in defeat, but Michael takes the win that keeps Disappointment firmly in the regular-season race and answers last week's loss to Devin with his best total of the season.

Amon Another level (144.64) vs BearDown (108.00)

Devin gets the cleaner afternoon as Amon Another level handles Dakota.

Week 10 in FoulknFootball had the look of a game that could turn on quarterback play, and that is where Devin found his edge. Amon Another level beat Dakota's BearDown 144.64 to 108.00, a comfortable margin built around Jaxson Dart's 26.28 points for the Giants against Chicago. Dart supplied 242 passing yards and 66 rushing yards, and his two rushing touchdowns gave Devin the best number on either side.

Devin did not need a perfect card. Bryce Young gave him only 1.56 for Carolina against New Orleans, and Justin Jefferson's 12 targets turned into just 3.7 for Minnesota against Baltimore. And yet, Amon Another level kept finding useful scores in the middle of the lineup. Chris Olave caught five balls for 104 yards and a touchdown for the Saints on his way to 16.4, DeVonta Smith added 12.9 for Philadelphia against Green Bay, and Amon-Ra St. Brown gave Detroit 11.8 against Washington.

On the other side, Dakota got another strong effort from Caleb Williams. The Chicago quarterback posted 25.1 points against the Giants with 220 passing yards, 63 rushing yards, and two total touchdowns, while Marvin Harrison added 11.3 for Arizona and Brian Robinson chipped in 10.5 for Atlanta. The problem was that BearDown took too many zeros and near-zeros at once. Dak Prescott finished at 0.0, Xavier Legette at 0.0, and Josh Downs managed 0.3.

One sharp detail says most of it. Devin survived his biggest bust and still cleared projection at 144.64, while Dakota fell short of projection and left 19.42 points from Jacoby Brissett on the bench. In a high-stakes battle for position in the middle of the table, that was enough separation all by itself.

The consequence is a familiar one from the last two weeks, now made firmer. Amon Another level extends its winning streak to three in FoulknFootball, and BearDown's losing streak reaches five.

Storylines

- Brian gets Week 11 with first place intact, but a loss combined with another strong week from the 6-4 and 5-5 pack would bring the top of the race back within reach.
- The No. 4 seed is the live line in FoulknFootball right now, with Eric inside it at 5-5 and Devin, Michael, and Dave all carrying enough scoring to make one week feel expensive.

- Dakota’s five-game losing streak is now the league’s longest active slide, and another quiet week would keep BearDown pointed toward the wrong end of the standings.
- Rob’s surge to No. 5 in the power rankings is real, but Week 11 is the test of whether Unstoppable Farce is making a late run or simply collecting dangerous totals too late.

Standings (snapshot)

Rank	Team	Owner	W-L-T	Streak	PF	PA
1	First in and First Out?	Brian	8-2-0	W1	1941.96	1786.98
2	Seasonal Depression	Jake	6-4-0	L1	1809.08	1703.08
3	He hate me	Dave	5-5-0	L1	1833.38	1815.84
4	Sanders Boutte on Sunday	Eric	5-5-0	L1	1728.64	1699.52
5	Amon Another level	Devin	5-5-0	W3	1659.00	1706.70
6	Disappointment	Michael	5-5-0	W1	1649.50	1617.24
7	Unstoppable Farce	Rob	3-7-0	W1	1734.72	1950.02
8	BearDown	Dakota	3-7-0	L5	1582.74	1659.64

Power rankings

#	Move	Team	Owner	Power	Last-3 PF
1	—	First in and First Out?	Brian	95.6	187.76
2	▲ 1	He hate me	Dave	89.4	197.27
3	▽ 1	Seasonal Depression	Jake	85.8	168.07
4	—	Sanders Boutte on Sunday	Eric	84.3	182.77
5	▲ 2	Unstoppable Farce	Rob	80.5	176.43
6	▽ 1	Amon Another level	Devin	80.0	167.88
7	▽ 1	Disappointment	Michael	77.4	152.57
8	—	BearDown	Dakota	68.5	126.11

Season ledger

Hot hand: Amon Another level (W3). Cold spell: BearDown (L5). Trending down: BearDown (last 3 avg 126.1 vs season 158.3, -20%).

- First in and First Out? has scored 150+ in 10 straight weeks.
- Seasonal Depression has scored 150+ in 10 straight weeks.
- Sanders Boutte on Sunday has scored 150+ in 7 straight weeks.

Forecast

Matchup	Pick	Projected Score	Confidence	X-Factor
Unstoppable Farce vs Seasonal Depression	Seasonal Depression	145.8 – 139.6	Lean	150+ points in 10 straight
Amon Another level vs First in and First Out?	First in and First Out?	149.2 – 128.1	Lock	150+ points in 10 straight
Disappointment vs He hate me	He hate me	171.4 – 141.7	Lock	Power rank up to No. 2
Sanders Boutte on Sunday vs BearDown	Sanders Boutte on Sunday	154.9 – 121.3	Lock	BearDown lost 5 straight

Predictions

- First in and First Out? wins by 18 or more, reaches 150+ points for an 11th straight week, and stays on top of the power structure entering Week 12.
- He hate me scores 165+ in a win over Disappointment, and Dave's club strengthens its hold on a projected top-3 seed after climbing to No. 2 in the current power rankings.
- Seasonal Depression extends its own 150+ streak to 11 weeks and beats Unstoppable Farce by at least 6 points, holding serve in the race for the No. 2 seed.
- Sanders Boutte on Sunday wins by 25+, while BearDown stays under 130 points and the losing streak reaches 6 games.